

Angling Trust Recommended Retention Sizes

For Sea Angling Matches and Competitions

Should there be any dispute on the measurement of a fish the Match Organisers Master Measure will be the deciding measure. All fish are to be measured from the tip of the snout to the end of the tail fin, except Skates and Rays which are to be measured wing tip to wing tip. All sizes are in centimetres or kilograms where indicated.

1. An Environment Agency byelaw prevent anglers from retaining the European eel (Anguilla anguilla). However, they can be retained for weighing or measuring but must be returned alive to the water they were taken from on completion of fishing. For the Angling Trust's policy on retaining European eels click here
2. Undulate ray are classified as endangered. We recommend that all fish are returned alive
3. Shad are now protected under the (EU - Berne Convention) and all fish must be returned.
4. Angel sharks are listed under UK Wildlife and Countryside Act and will be protected against killing, injuring or taking (section 9(1)) on land and up to 3 nautical miles (nm) from English coastal baselines.
5. Porbeagle are critically endangered in the Northeast Atlantic. We recommend that all fish are returned alive
6. Spurdog are classified as critically endangered in the Northeast Atlantic and we recommend that all fish are returned alive
7. Anglers should be aware that there is a national restriction on landing tope caught from a boat, which includes kayaks, by rod and line. Any boat-caught tope are legally required to be released as soon as possible after capture. Details of the Tope (Prohibition of Fishing Order) 2008 can be found here
8. In order for bluefin tuna to be caught directly, each Member State must apply for quota and then apply a second specific quota for recreational fishing purposes. The UK does not currently have a quota for the direct commercial or recreational fishing of bluefin tuna. Therefore, direct fishing for bluefin tuna is not allowed in the UK under current Regulations. Article 12.5 of Regulation 302/2009 states that "Each Member State shall take the necessary measures to ensure, to the greatest extent possible, the release of bluefin tuna caught alive, especially juveniles, in the framework of recreational fishing". Therefore, recreational sea anglers are obliged to do everything they can to ensure any by-catch is returned to the sea alive.
